

CALL FOR NOMINATIONS

The Annual College of Education Award for Excellence in Research

This award recognizes an outstanding data-based publication in a peer-reviewed journal published in the past year.

Eligibility

The publication must be printed (not in press) in a peer-reviewed journal in education or a closely related field within one year of the award (e.g., the 2009 award could have a publication date of 2009 or 2008.)

- First author must be an active member of the faculty of the College of Education at UNC Charlotte.
- The article must be data-based.
- Members of the Selection Committee are not eligible during their year of service.

Nomination Process

Nominations may be submitted by any faculty, staff, or students internal or external to the College.

The nomination for the College of Education Annual Research Award will include the following:

- A copy of the publication to be considered
- Evidence of peer-review status of the journal (e.g., Editorial Guidelines)
- Letter of nomination addressing the criteria (self-nominations are appropriate)
- A written statement by the first author about the research process (e.g., What I learned from conducting this research; What I learned from members of our team or the review process; In what ways I hope this article will impact the field of education); statements by coauthors are encouraged but not required
- External reviews or a letter from the editor may also be submitted that note the quality and importance of the work (optional)

Nominations are due in the Dean's Office no later than JANUARY 30, 2009.
Electronic submissions are encouraged.
